
How to Build a Stronger and Better U.S.-Brazil Trade Relationship

Carl H. Tong, Radford University

Lee-Ing Tong, National Chiao Tung University

James E. Tong, The Vanguard Group

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The U.S. and Brazil have the world's 1st and 7th largest economies. By working together more closely, these two countries can increase their global competitiveness, grow their economies faster, create more and better jobs, and raise their citizens' living standards. The objectives of this article are to report on the recent U.S.-Brazil trade statistics, to present the U.S.-Brazil trade issues, and to offer recommendations on how to build a stronger and better trade relationship between the two countries.

Keywords: U.S.-Brazil trade statistics, U.S.-Brazil trade issues, National Export Initiative (NEI), Top U.S. exports to Brazil, Top U.S. imports from Brazil, U.S.-Brazil trade relationship